

Now How You Do?: A Memoir

Now How You Do? A Memoir is a compilation of eighty-one letters written by Alabama native Susie M. Young to her daughters, Barbara Ann Young and Billie Jean Young, which provide a glimpse into life in the Alabama Blackbelt: the good, the bad, and the ugly. The letters chronicle the every day life of Susie M. Young as she witnesses the births, deaths, and other community events in a small Alabama town. The letters reveal Susie M. Youngs unique insights on raising children, sports, guns, hunting, and money, as well as her astute business acumen. Health care concerns shadow much of the subject matter in the letters and reveal the constant struggle that many African-Americans face in receiving adequate healthcare in the United States. Edited by daughter, Billie Jean Young, the award-winning author of Fear Not the Fall and Artist-in-Residence at Judson College, the letters express the great optimism and love for her family that sustained Susie M. Young through her determination to support her family in less than ideal circumstances. The compilation includes eleven tributes written by her children and grandchildren celebrating her ninetieth birthday on which the book was released. ? Now How You Do is a wonderfully authentic book. I have read it from cover to cover, and I understood every word of it. If you want to know something about the Blackbelt of Alabama, read this book. It is all here. Bob Whetstone, Board Chair Alabama Humanities Foundation and Professor Emeritus of Education, Birmingham Southern College
