

The Romance of Oklahoma (Classic Reprint)

Excerpt from The Romance of Oklahoma Romance is an elusive, fairy thing; a twin-sister to Truth, and bearing such resemblance, that often they are scarcely to be distinguished; and like Truth, she is one of the Infinities, albeit lesser, standing a step lower by the throne of the Great Infinite. Romance is the dreams of men come true; nay, was not the creation, the greatest romance of all, merely the fulfilment of the God-dream? Romance has the Midas touch - greater, indeed, for the caress of her fingers leaves behind it jewels of rare and splendid luster that shine with a thousand rays. Look indulgently, then, upon the shortcomings of this book; for finite cannot compass the infinite. Some few jewels we have gathered from the splendid casket of our State, and give them to your view. Romance has loved Oklahoma, and has bestowed on her wealth beyond our telling. With what we have told, we hope you may be pleased. In writing history, no one can claim originality. We have tried to make this book authentic; and for our material, we have perforce gone over ground that has been written of by others. The Committee wish to acknowledge their indebtedness to Mr. J. B. Thoburns History of Oklahoma; to the Catholic Encyclopedia; to Mr. George Bird Grinnell, author of Pawnee Folk Tales; to Mr. O. D. Halsell; to Mr. Selywn Douglas for his appropriate cover design; to Hon. Wm. Tilghman for the loan of pictures from his collection; and to various other persons who assisted the Club in securing hitherto unwritten material.
